

Clear path to sainthood for Newman after second miracle recognized

Pope Francis has signed a decree recognizing a miracle attributed to the intercession of Blessed John Henry Newman, the English cardinal, clearing the way for his canonization.

The Vatican announced Feb. 13 that Pope Francis had signed the decree the day before. Also Feb. 12, he formally recognized that the late Hungarian Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty, jailed and exiled by the communists, had lived the Christian virtues in a heroic way; the recognition is an early step in the sainthood process.

“Blessed John Henry Newman’s canonization is sure to be a great gift to the Church. He was one of the most important theologians of the 19th century, if not the most important,” said Jason West, president of Newman Theological College in Edmonton.

“He lived a life of deep integrity and prayer bringing together the intellectual life and the heart in a manner that provides an example that is deeply needed in today’s fragmented world.”

In the sainthood cause of Blessed Newman, Bishop Philip Egan of Portsmouth had reported in November that the proposed miracle involved a young law graduate from the Archdiocese of Chicago who faced life-threatening complications during her pregnancy but suddenly recovered when she prayed to the English cardinal for help.

Blessed Newman was born in London in 1801 and was ordained an Anglican priest in 1825. He was a leader in the Oxford Movement in the 1830s, which emphasized the Catholic roots of Anglicanism.

After a succession of clashes with Anglican bishops made him a virtual outcast from the Church of England, he joined the Catholic Church at the age of 44 and was ordained a Catholic priest in 1846.

Pope Leo XIII made him a cardinal in 1879 while respecting his wishes not to be ordained a bishop.

A theologian and poet, he died in 1890 and his sainthood cause was opened in 1958.

The date for his canonization will be announced after Pope Francis holds a meeting of cardinals to formalize their support for declaring Blessed Newman a saint.

Blessed Newman's canonization is likely to occur as Newman Theological College celebrates its 50th anniversary. West said the college plans to install a reliquary of Blessed Newman in the college chapel where it will remain for veneration.

"The college's students have developed a remarkable devotion to Newman," West said.

"There are two clear examples of this: A former student developed a selection of readings from Newman that the college has printed and distributed for a number of years now. Secondly, over the past two years the (Newman Theological College Student Association) has begun the academic year with a Novena to Blessed John Henry Newman."

Pope Benedict XVI beatified him in Birmingham, England, in 2010.

“The process has seemed to be particularly important for Pope Emeritus Benedict, who took the unusual step of going to the U.K. to perform the beatification personally,” West said.

“The relatively quick move to canonization by Pope Francis highlights the importance of Newman’s theology for the Church today.”

The sainthood cause of Cardinal Mindszenty, who led the Archdiocese of Esztergom, Hungary’s primate see, is in its initial stages. The decree of “heroic virtues” means he can be called “venerable.”

He was born March 29, 1892, in what was Austro-Hungary and was ordained to the priesthood in 1915, named archbishop in 1945 and a cardinal in 1946.

Arrested by the communists in 1948 on charges of treason, Cardinal Mindszenty was tortured into confessing. He was sentenced to life in prison.

During the Hungarian Revolution of 1956, he was released, but when Soviet forces invaded Hungary to restore the communist government, he took refuge in the U.S. Embassy in Budapest. He spent more than 15 years there.

After negotiations with St. Paul VI, the cardinal was allowed to leave Hungary in 1971. He died in exile in Austria in 1975. Once democracy was restored, his body was reburied in Hungary in 1991.

In other decrees signed Feb. 12, Pope Francis recognized:

– The miracle needed for the canonization of Blessed Theresia Chiramel Mankidiyan, the Indian founder of the Sisters of the Holy Family. She died in 1926 and was beatified in 2000.

- The martyrdom of Jesuit Rev. Victor Emilio Moscoso Cardenas, who was killed in Ecuador in 1897.
- The heroic virtues of Rev. Giovanni Battista Zuaboni, an Italian diocesan priest who founded the Company of the Holy Family. He died in 1939.
- The heroic virtues of Spanish Jesuit Rev. Emmanuel Garcia Nieto, who died in 1974.
- The heroic virtues of Sister Letizia Formai, the Italian founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Good News; she died in 1954.
- The heroic virtues of Sister Ana Julia Duque Hencker, the Colombian founder of the Sisters of the Annunciation, who died in 1993.
